SaskMilk's 12th Annual General Meeting took place on December 8, 2021. Due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the meeting was held virtually via Zoom.

This meeting was a chance for producers and industry partners to be updated on the inner workings of SaskMilk and the Canadian dairy industry as a whole. The meeting consisted of several presentations from the SaskMilk Board, staff, and industry partners including

12th Annual General Meeting Recap

Dairy Farmers of Canada and the Canadian Dairy Commission.

Board Chair, Matthew Flaman, delivered a Chair's Report which centred on the progress over the 2020-2021 year. He provided an update on the Strategic Plan, collaboration in the Western Milk Pool, and changes to the Quota Transfer system. General Manager, Peter Brown, also provided an update from the office. His presentation touched on the new office space, the Progressive Penalty System, and Promotions and Public Outreach.

The AGM also served as an opportunity to notify producers of the upcoming Board member changes. Outgoing member, Brian Lindenbach, was recognized for his service on the Board over the 2020-2021 year and the Board welcomed incoming member Jake Mitchell for the start of his three-year term.

The AGM was followed by a closed producer session where producers had the opportunity to ask questions fielded by the Board and staff.

Thank you to all producers and industry partners who took the time to attend this year's AGM. As the year comes to a close, SaskMilk wants to wish you a merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Mental Health Spotlight

The When, How, and Why of Mental Health Support

By Cynthia Beck, MSc Candidate in Clinical Psychology, and Mixed Farm Operator

Something that prevents many people from reaching out to get help with their mental health is not knowing how to go about it. Questions without answers might get in our way, questions such as: who do I contact? What do I say? Is it worth my time to talk to someone? Will talking to someone make me feel worse?

If you are thinking about your health (or recognize that you're not feeling good, exhausted, unmotivated, not dealing well, finding it difficult to get your work done), you have already taken the first step, which is having some self-awareness as to how you are doing.

1. Do I need to prepare for the session? Is there anything I need to bring?

Most people feel apprehensive or are unsure what to expect the first time they see a mental health professional. It may feel a little nerve wracking and that's normal! For most of us, it's not often that we talk about our mental health. Think of the first session as an introduction session. Be prepared to share a little about yourself, for example, about your physical and mental state, your lifestyle, and what you're dealing with. Depending on the qualifications of the clinician, they may ask questions about medications you are taking.

2. How do I know if I am connected to the right person?

Think about finding a mental health professional in the same manner that you would go about hiring a farm hand: ask them questions, find out what qualifications they have, what professional association or regulating body they belong to, what modality they practice (do they do talk therapy or structured interventions), and for how long people typically see them. Feel free to search the clinician online. Ask the clinician if they offer an introductory session so that you can meet and see if you connect with them or if they may not be the right fit for you. Finding the right mental health provider is a lot like finding a good pair of work boots - if you don't find the right pair on the first try, you don't quit wearing boots altogether. You try a different brand of boots until you find the pair that's comfortable and provides the right amount of support.

3. What if I am not ready to dive into the deep feelings yet?

Therapy isn't only talking about feelings, and this is very important to remember. As agriculture producers, we deal with high amounts of stress for long periods of time. Often, it's not our feelings we need to talk about first, it is the facts of what we're dealing with in our daily life. Specifically for agriculture producers, we first need to learn coping strategies for dealing with the stressors we experience. Then you have the right to share as little or as much as you choose with your mental health clinician. Keep in mind, the clinician's job is to help you sort through the problem in order to build coping strategies to help you get back on track. It is also the clinician's job to support you through that process, and it may take a couple of sessions for you to feel comfortable enough to delve into what's going on for you.

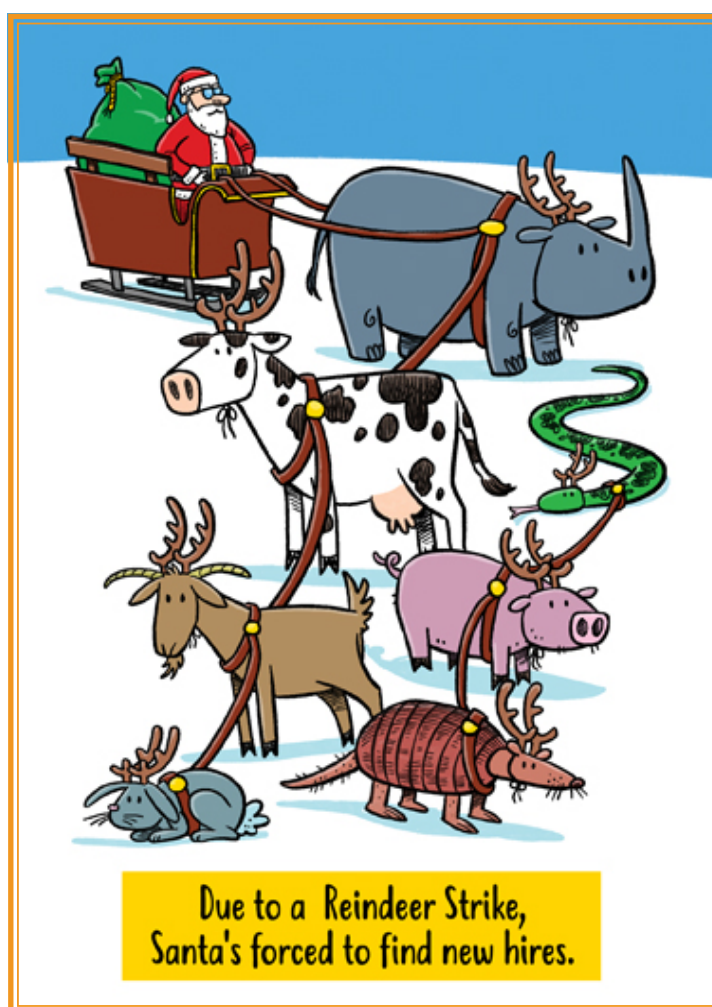

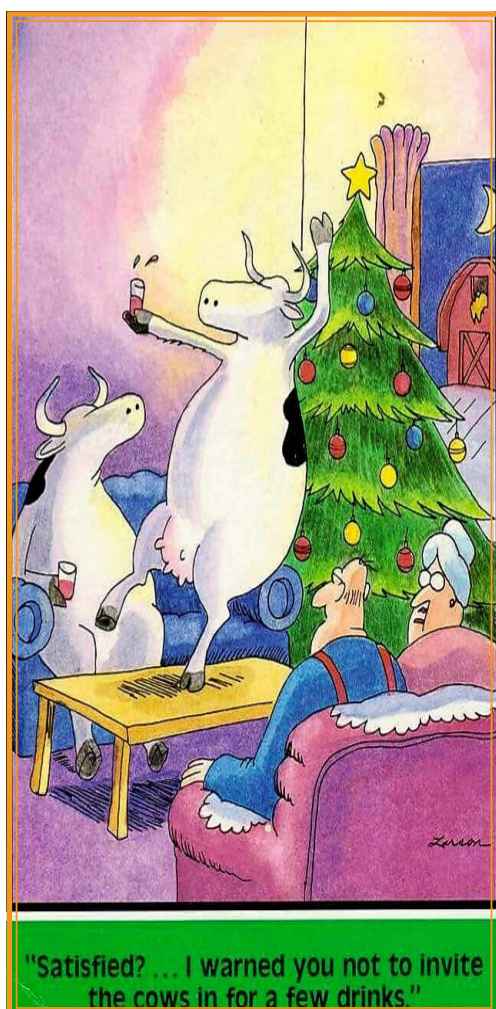

4. Do I have to do all the talking?

Think of therapy or counselling as having a conversation. It takes two people to have a conversation, and no, you will not have to do all of the talking. The therapist will probably guide the conversation so as to help you identify the problem areas and discuss coping strategies or possible solutions.

5. What if I don't feel better after the first session?

It is unrealistic to expect to be fixed or 100% better after the first session. Sometimes people feel a little better and sometimes people may feel a little worse. If you are talking about your challenges or problems for the first time, it is natural for emotions and thoughts to surface that have been buried, perhaps for a long time. Think of it like replacing a cracked water line – in order to get to the problem and find the solution, you have to dig through layers of manure, mud, and dirt. It's frustrating, tiring, you are probably angry, and you get really dirty while working on solving the problem; but it is worth it in the end. Please go into therapy or counselling with the expectations of attending more than one session, and focus on problem solving and developing coping strategies to help you in your daily life.

The Do More Agriculture Foundation is the national voice and champion for mental health in Canadian agriculture and is changing the culture of agriculture to one where all producers are encouraged, supported, and empowered to take care of their mental wellbeing. Producers are among the most vulnerable when it comes to mental health issues. By collaborating with the entire industry and those working to address the state of mental health in Agriculture, we can and will make a substantial impact.

Quota Exchange

The market-clearing price established for the December 2021 Quota Exchange was $45,055.

The next Quota Exchange will be held on January 15, 2021. All offers to sell and bids to purchase quota through the Quota Exchange must be submitted by midnight, January 6, 2021. SaskMilk recommends that offers and bids be submitted well in advance of the deadline date to ensure adequate time for corrections, if necessary.

When making bids on the Quota Exchange, the price on offers to sell quota is the minimum price that the producer is prepared to accept for that quota. Only if the market-clearing price is equal to or greater than the producer's minimum price will that producer qualify for participation in the Exchange. Conversely, the price on offers to purchase quota is the maximum price that the producer is prepared to pay for that quota. Only if the market-clearing price is equal to or less than the producer's maximum price will that producer qualify for participation in the Exchange. The clearing price is set at the price where the smallest difference exists between the accumulated volume offered for sale and the accumulated volume bid to purchase. The results of the Quota Exchange are outlined in the following table.

The year 2022 will mark the 50th anniversary of the Saskatchewan Games -- and this will be an event to remember, with more than 1,800 athletes, coaches and officials gathering in Regina to share in the thrill of competition and camaraderie on the provincial stage.

Volunteers are required in the following areas:

- Athlete Experience
- Ceremonies and Culture
- Food Services
- Logistics & IT
- Marketing & Communications
- Medical Services
- Safety & Security
- Sport Events
- Venues
- Volunteer Coordination

For more information and to read the volunteer descriptions, visit our website. If you are interested in volunteering, please register online.

Volunteer roles are available for people of all ages, abilities, and accessibilities, so we hope you'll join us in celebrating 50 year of the Saskatchewan Games and help us welcome the entire province to our backyard!

DFC Update

Have your say on the future of dairy farming in Canada

The Code of Practice for the Care and Handling of Dairy Cattle is undergoing important updates and farmers' input is needed. Your feedback will help the organizations behind the Code better understand how the proposed changes will affect farmers, and since the Code forms the basis for proAction's Animal Care module, any updates to the Code have a direct impact on all dairy farm operations in Canada.

The public comment period is now open

This is your chance to speak up and help shape the future of dairy farming in Canada! Farmers can submit their comments on the Code as part of the public comment period, which is open for 60 days from November 29, 2021 to January 27, 2022. Both individuals and organizations can provide submissions, but duplicate or "template" submissions (i.e. multiple submissions that are substantially similar or come from the same IP address) will be treated as one submission.

If you're short on time, you can make a single comment that applies to the whole Code or comment on just one or two requirements. But if you don't comment, your voice will not be heard on these important upcoming changes.

A Step-by-Step Guide to Participating in the Public Comment Period is available at <https://www.nfacc.ca/codes-of-practice/dairy-cattle>

DFC sponsors new podcast for dairy, by dairy

DFC is excited to announce its sponsorship of "The Canadian Podcow," a new podcast made by Canadian dairy farmers for dairy producers, as well as the broader dairy community and their friends. Hosts Sarah Sache and Andrew Campbell explore issues and provide analysis, offering their perspectives about dairy farming and the dairy value-chain both here at home and internationally. A French version of the podcast called «Entre deux traites» is hosted by Sabrina Caron and Jean-François Janelle.

Learn more about the Code of Practice

In January, a special episode of The Canadian Podcow focused on the Code of Practice will be released. It is available for download here: <https://rss.com/podcasts/canadianpodcow/>
